

"MESSIAH" TO BE MAJESTIC AFFAIR

4 Soloists, Appearing with Chorus of 250, Among Nation's Best.

In the presentation of "The Messiah" at the Congregational church here next Tuesday night, two concertists in one will be given and both of such a high order that one alone would be considered an outstanding event of the season. When the two choruses, the Janesville Community Chorus and the Milton Choral Union are combined, and have the orchestral accompaniment of the Milton orchestra, and all that added to by the appearance of four soloists, each a concert artist, the presentation of this famous oratorio assumes such importance that not to hear it is to miss the big musical treat of the season.

The soloists are Mae Graves Atkins, Chicago, soprano; Alice W. Keller, Chicago, contralto; Glenn Drake, Chicago, tenor; and Harry Phillips, Minneapolis, bass. The name of Miss Atkins is more or less familiar to Janesville people, she having appeared here a number of times. She has received high recommendation from critics wherever she has appeared, their comments being that she has an exquisite voice, well trained, and grace, charm and simplicity in singing. Her qualities will be especially fitted for the soprano parts in "The Messiah."

voice to make the solo parts well balanced with a well-trained chorus of 250 voices, a good orchestra, and all these with the most glorious, most inspiring and grandest of all oratorios, an almost perfect performance is being anticipated.

Tickets are selling well. Mrs. F. O. Holt, chairman of the committee, announces, but there will be plenty of seats left to be sold at the door preceding the performance, to care for a good demand, perhaps 150 or 200. These will probably go rapidly and those who do not take advantage of buying tickets from a committee member, now canvassing the city, or buying a ticket at one of the stores selling them—Reliable Drug, People's Drug, McKenzies, Kuhlows, Nott's, Diehl's, Drummond—will do well to go to the church early.

Final rehearsal will be held here Sunday afternoon. The oratorio is to be presented at Milton, Monday night, and many from here will attend on that night.

Thursday, accompanied by her little granddaughter, Miss Susan Eager. The Helpers' union met Friday at the home of Mrs. Charles Thompson.

Badgers Drop to Butler, 20-13

Madison—Butler college had little difficulty defeating the Wisconsin basketball team here Friday night, 20 to 13, in a closely played game. The Badgers were completely outclassed with neither of their new forwards able to make a tally. Captain Tobell and Kellie Williams at guard made Wisconsin's score and were the mainstay of the team. This is the Badgers' second defeat by Butler in two years.

Costume Recital. Pleasant 200.—Miss Jean Knowlton, Chicago, who sang at Library hall Friday night under the patronage of the Mac Dowell club presented a notably interesting and unusual song recital. Miss Knowlton has a well-trained lyric soprano of great beauty and flexibility and attired as a French shepherdess her voice was well displayed in the French songs arranged by Weckerlin. Part 1 of the program. "Just Before the Lights Are Lit." "Nightingale Lane." and "Sings to Me." of this group exemplified the sympathetic quality of the soprano's voice.

The accompanying and piano numbers by Mrs. Fred E. Gardner, Beloit, enhanced the program many times. Mrs. Gardner plays with great skill and remarkable intelligence. "Chant Polonoise" Chopin-Liszt and "Fantasie" in F minor. Chopin brought forth a storm of applause. In keeping with the season Miss Knowlton sang a few of the old English Christmas carols. The first a carol of the fifteenth century. "Noche de Paz" (Night of Peace) the Spanish version of "Silent Night, Holy Night." was one of the most pleasing numbers of the entire program.

It is in the Spanish numbers that Miss Knowlton reaches her height. A keen sense of entertainment values was displayed as the singer, attired in true Spanish costume, wearing a ruff old "manton," presented to her audience all the color, romance and melody of Spain. Her excellent Castilian pronunciation lent much to this group. The passionate and languid songs from Moorish Spain, gay songs from Andalusia and the grave folk lore songs from northern Spain were dramatic and interesting.

The closing number "Seguidilla" by Manuel de Falla, the most popular Spanish composer was brilliant and high colored.

Mrs. F. O. Holt was chairman of the committee which had charge of the sale of tickets.

Social Forecast.—Christmas parties, with all the "ixins" of the season such as the tree, and exchange of gifts are planned for the week by churches, clubs and civic organizations.

Various means are being employed to observe the season. Singers of this city and Milton have for weeks been preparing to present Handel's "Messiah" Monday night at Milton and Tuesday night here at Congregational church.

Older girls will give a Christmas party Monday night at the Y. W. C. A. under the auspices of the Young Women's Council. The F. O. E. club originally a club of Samson Tractor employees will give a Christmas party and the A. M. E. T. club will enjoy a tree and exchange of gifts at the home of Mrs. John B. Gsell, Monroe street. Junior Girls of St. Peter's church have their annual Yule party Monday night. The Congregational Twenty club has its party Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. A. Craig, Court street and a Five Hundred club will have a tree at the home of Mrs. M. H. Haviland, Third street.

An old fashioned party with a Christmas tree will be given Wednesday at Presbyterian church for the Sunday school. Kooluk Camp fire girls will be entertained with a tree Wednesday night at the home of Miss Genevieve Jensen. The Washington school is presenting an operetta "Santa Claus To The Rescue" Wednesday afternoon and night in the high school gymnasium. Moose lodge has its annual Christmas party for children Friday night. Service Star Legion is giving a party for ex-service men's children the same night in the annex of Eagles hall. It has long been a custom for the Social Arts club to have a party Christmas week. Their party is set for Friday night. Fifteen school reserves have a party at the Y. W. Friday.

America Rebekah lodge No. 26 will observe Christmas with a party Saturday night in East Side hall. Many of the churches will present parents, and candle light services Sunday.

Sodality to Meet.—The Young Ladies' Sodality, St. Patrick's church will meet at 8 p. m. Monday at St. Patrick's school hall. Important business is to be transacted and a full attendance is desired.

Mrs. Sennett Hostess.—Mrs. Frank Sennett, 1331 St. Lawrence avenue, entertained Friday night with a dinner party. Among the guests was Mrs. W. R. Brunell, Evansville.

Never on Time Club Meets.—The Never on Time club was entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Ernest Stramps, 1320 Ravine street. Sixteen women were guests. Buncos was played, and prizes taken by Mesdames R. V. Rogers, Charles Handy and William Churchhill. Following the game a lunch was served.

A two course supper was served at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Carman Hostess.—Mrs. Sadie Carman was re-elected president of the Service Star Legion Friday night at the regular meeting in Eagles' hall. Other officers are as follows: Mrs. Dora Hermann, first vice president; Mrs. Ida Rutledge, recording secretary; Mrs. Gertrude McKelvey, chairman of the publicity committee and corresponding secretary; Mrs. Margaret Gregg, treasurer; Mrs. Francis Blitt, chaplain; Mrs. Dora Hermann, chairman of the gold star division; Mrs. Gertrude Hendrickson, chairman of the sunshine committee; Mrs. Nellie Williams, historian; Mrs. Emma Knapp, captain of the staff; Mrs. Laura North, guard; Mrs. Margaret Plumer, assistant guard; Mrs. Sadie Carman, federal director.

Plans for the Christmas tree to be held Friday, Dec. 22, at Eagles' annex were completed. All children of ex-service men and members are invited. A program with toys, candy and fruit for each child is being arranged. Supper will be served the children.

One new member was initiated. It was voted to send boxes to boys in hospitals at Christmas time and a box of groceries to a needy ex-service man living in the country. A request has been received for canceled stamps to be sent to a boy who makes his living constructing favors and post cards. Mrs. Tim McKelvey is taking orders for the cards.

The Junior branch of the organization met with the others Friday night and three new members were elected.

THE QUESTION OF IMMIGRATION

Beginning about the first of September of this year there was started a general propaganda for repeal of the present immigration law and a return to the old method of letting in all who applied and who were able to pass the feeble examination. These efforts were mostly centered in the east and the chief leaders were the heads of great industries—steel, copper and mining, though there was a racial element also which looked for more sweat shop operators.

Automatically the present rule of admitting three percent of the number from any nation now resident in the United States will terminate June 30, 1924. Congress has recently been lobbied and attacked from all sides and heavy pressure has been brought to bear to repeal the immigration bill which was passed in response to the public demand and in fear that the country, then beginning deflation and entering upon a period of depression would be overburdened with a dependent population. What happened was that from time to time between August 1920 and June 1922 reports of the secretary of labor disclosed the fact that from 6,000,000 to 1,000,000 unemployed persons were in the United States. Since then we have seen conditions change and in the industrial centers have at more than a hundred points a shortage of labor.

When the new immigration law was passed it was merely restrictive and little was done to remedy the evils which have been almost criminal in the last 60 years. It will be necessary to change our viewpoint and admit that labor should be something other than a mere chattel and mobilized at times where needed.

It may be that we need more labor now but supposing a swing should come to the pendulum and it go backward? We would add to the unemployed labor about the additional amount that we would have permitted to arrive. One of the reasons advanced for opening the bars is that a larger per cent of emigration than immigration has taken place in the past year. True, but it must be understood that much of that emigration came from the fact that unemployment was so great as to invite it.

There is much pressure now to permit the pauperized peoples from Thrace and Armenia to come to America. That might be possible if we could set aside a section of the country for them and they not be permitted to add to the stum population of the cities. But we have no way of segregating such populations and in spite of serious and well organized effort now and in the past, the greater part of immigration comes to the larger cities and makes for more congestion, increased poverty and additional social difficulties.

Much of our troubles have come from permitting anyone who could add to wealth by his labor to land here, regardless of other conditions. These people are generally ignorant—that has been so in the last few years, especially since the whole trend of immigration has changed from Western to Eastern Europe—and they have little or no conception or knowledge of our language, ideals, hopes, schools, government, or of what the future may hold. Sudden and solid, they have exaggerated personal grievances into national ones and have become a menace in the enforcement of law, obligations to country and government, and the youth of this class of immigrant has made up the larger part of the criminal class. There are many exceptions—we speak only of the mass. Immigration made this nation, the melting pot was a real fusing of all new citizens who came here, but it is no longer so. From these countries of Western Europe, from the British Isles, Ireland, Belgium, France, Holland, Scandinavia, Germany, Switzerland, there is under the present law practically no restriction because the people from those countries are not now numerous as prospective immigrants.

For the first time in America's history we have an operative immigration law. It is not believable that we shall ever go back to the old open gate with hordes of undesirable people coming to America to make trouble and be out of harmony, always alien and glad of it.

We shall never accomplish anything worth while until we say to every man and woman who comes here: "This is America. If you have come to join us we are glad. If you only have selfish motives you may go back. No man or woman landing on these shores with the expectation of making a home here, can do so without becoming an American citizen, learning the language, be able to read and write English, and taking a place in the republic which is open to all citizens under the constitution."

If you want to be talked about just start in making weather predictions.

CHRISTMAS AND SNOW.

Christmas would not be itself in this climate without snow and the accompanying cold. There is a snap to the walk, a tang to the air that makes one get about quickly, and a perfect harmony between all the poetry and tradition of Santa Claus and the coming of the day of the Nativity and snowy weather. A "green Christmas" makes a fat graveyard is said often, and it is so that in the hot temperate zone and in altitudes wherein we live winter is around zero weather is seasonable and illness is not so frequent as when the weather is warm and the air damp with unprecipitated moisture.

THE OLDEST APPLE TREE

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—An apple orchard that is more than a century old, that has flourished under three governments and fed one of the latest races and still bears apples, is one of the latest discoveries in the Southwest. It was recently by officers of the United States Forest Service.

That is the orchard has been known for a long time, but the age of the trees was only scientifically determined last summer. Until experts had cut down one of the trees and counted the rings, no one who knew anything about apple trees would believe that the orchard had stood for a century. Now they know that some of the smallest trees have lived that long, and it seems logically certain that some of the larger ones must have lived a great deal longer. Furthermore, many of the trees now standing in this venerable orchard look as though they had grown from the stumps of trees that had fallen or been cut down. The natives living thereabouts say that tradition gives the age of the orchard at from 250 to 400 years. It seems possible that in a sense they are right. There is reason to believe that the ancestors, at least, of the present trees were planted in the seventeenth century.

This historic orchard is located near the little town of Manzanito on the eastern slope of the Manzanito mountains in central New Mexico. Manzanito is the Spanish word for apple. Both the mountain range and town have taken their names from the ancient trees. The priest in the church at Manzanito, who is a sort of custodian of the orchard, tells inquirers that the trees have been growing there for 250 years, according to the tradition which has been handed down from padre to padre through the generations. The oldest native inhabitants of the little town believe that the orchard has been there for 400 years. That date is improbable, for the Spanish exploration of the Southwest had scarcely begun so long ago, and apple trees were certainly brought to America by the Europeans.

But the priest, when he claims that the orchard is more than two centuries old, has strong historical evidence on his side. For these trees almost certainly are relics of that heroic age in the history of the Southwest when Spanish priests and soldiers were there engaged in subduing a great wilderness of savages for the king of Spain, and the church of Rome. At every one of the pueblo villages which dot this region the Spaniards built great churches of stone and left a few priests to teach those savages the fear of God and also the culture of crops and herds. The Pueblos were already farmers, raising corn and cotton and melons, but they had no domestic animals except the turkey and no fruit trees.

The padres, armed with nothing but the cross, took their stand in a hostile wilderness as the prophets of religion and civilization. In some instances they were murdered by the Indians of their own flock. More often they succeeded in winning the friendship of the Pueblos, only to be overwhelmed by the wild tribes of the Navajos and Apaches which waged an incessant warfare upon both the Pueblo Indians and the Spaniards. In some instances these brave Franciscan friars triumphed over all difficulties and dangers. Some of the ancient mission churches still stand and are still in use. Many of the greatest ones are in ruins.

Now one of the ancient ruined churches stands not far from the ancient Manzanito orchard, and a good deal is known of its history. In the seventeenth century a large Indian pueblo, known as Quarai, stood at this spot, and it is recorded that the Franciscan fathers built this mission church of Quarai in the year 1622. It is also known that in 1675 it was abandoned for the reason that the Navajos had repeatedly raided it, killed priests and friendly Indians and destroyed crops. It was an outpost of civilization which could not stand against the savages.

Of Quarai, both pueblos and church, nothing now remains but a heap of stone and a few massive walls that stand so attentively and well that the old Spaniards built. Nothing was left alive in the vicinity except the apple trees. For it seems almost certain that the original trees of the orchard were planted by the Franciscan friars of the Quarai mission, and if that is the case, the original trees must have been planted before 1675, which would make them at least 250 years old.

Naturally much legend clings about the old trees, but a scientific investigation of them had never been undertaken until last summer. It was initiated by a discussion between a local government man as to how long ago the Department of Agriculture was especially eager to know this, as it would shed light upon a certain phase of his work. He said the oldest apple tree of which he had been able to find any record was in an Oregon orchard and that it was somewhere between 50 and 60 years old. A forest service man told him of this apple orchard that had stood for centuries, according to legend. He pooh-poohed the legend. The discussion ended by the two men's climbing into a car and driving 50 miles across the mountains to the town of Manzanito.

They found that the old orchard stood in an arroyo, a dry water course. No one seemed to care for it. It got no water in that land of perpetual drought except what came down the arroyo when it rained. The trees were badly in need of pruning, but they still had vitality enough to produce a crop of apples, which were very small, but sweet and well-flavored.

Like many another historical monument in the Southwest, the old orchard was rapidly perishing of neglect. With proper care the old trees might live for a long time yet, and they have great value both as historical relics and as scientific specimens.

The priest of the Manzanito church was glad to tell that he knew about the trees. He was exceedingly proud of them as relics, but he had neither the time nor the means to care for them. One of the smaller trees had recently died, and he gave the scientists permission to cut it down in order that they might count the rings of annual growth by which the age of any tree may be accurately determined. They counted at least 85 rings, in the sound part of the tree, the rest of them having been obliterated by heart rot, but they felt sure the total was not less than a hundred. And this tree was one of the smallest. The scientists have marked one of the largest trees, which seems to be nearly dying, as the next subject for their investigations. No one, of course, would want to cut down one of the living trees.

The investigation of this larger tree may bring forth proof that here—and probably nowhere else in the world—apple trees have stood for two centuries or more.

Murderers have been found guilty and sentenced to death. Evidently they do not read the unwritten law over there.

The Green Day Press-Gazette, one of the best of the state's newspapers will break ground May 1, for a new building to house the plant. The Press-Gazette is published in a city of 35,000 people with close-by villages and cities with 15,000 additional population and has been so good a paper that no competition in the city has been possible. The Press-Gazette fills the field. Another Wisconsin paper, the Wausau Record-Herald has just celebrated its 25th birthday and its publisher, J. L. Stuart, may well be pleased at the support of the people of his section of the state. Recent efforts to establish another newspaper in Wausau failed utterly with a great loss of the stockholders' money. The Record-Herald with its long history and its news-gathering force has become in the past 25 years an institution of the city and community round about.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

GETTING ON TO CHRISTMAS
It's getting on to Christmas and a little boy I know
Jumps out of bed o'mornings and to school seems glad to go.
And a pair of little stockings which his mother gives him about
Now have ceased their awful habit of being all ways inside out.

It's getting on to Christmas and a little fellow stands
At the basin in the bathroom scrubbing dirty little hands.
And a certain little necktie which was once a sight to see
Now looks as neat and proper as a necktie ought to be.

It's getting on to Christmas, and a shock of tousled hair
Now wants to be smooth and lustre of the most do-voted care.
And although the part buttons that at times
the task was rushed.
No one could doubt the statement that his hair was combed and brushed.

No longer little garments now are hung upon the floor.
At night his cap and jacket always hang upon the door.
There's a salubrious air about him, things are going as they should—
It's getting on to Christmas and the season's being good.

HAIR, HAIR!
A scientist in France has found
A way to transplant hair
Into the balddest of bald heads
And make it linger there.
But to the comic actors, this
Will be a crushing blow.
For it will ruin fully half
The standard jokes they know.
If I were bald and could have hair
Like that of Payette Bill
I'd let no duffer take my dome
And seed it with a drill.
For baldness, it is no disgrace,
In fact it's rather nice while haircuts
To have a good egg white haircuts
Are at their present price.

WHAT DO YOU MEAN, NO COURTESY?

A well known society of women, which is of national importance, has started a movement to establish old-fashioned, pre-revolutionary courtesy toward women in this country. The claim is that there is a singular lack of this saving grace on the part of the gentlemen of modern times.

But, dear ladies, when we allow a lady off a street car, do we not always say, "Excuse me?" When we walk a lady's path do we not punctiliously mumble, "Beg pardon?" When we are in elevators, do we not remove our hats, even if we do blow cigar smoke in your faces? You can't have everything.

When you asked for the vote, didn't we give it to you? Even though we knew it was no good, didn't we give it to you?

When we place our elbows in a lady's back and push her out of line at a ticket window don't we always say, "So sorry, madame?"

Courtesy? You can hear it on every hand. You may not see it or experience it, but you hear it—so it must be there, if you get what we mean.

Nature offers me old problems. A dog is never married, yet a man lives four times as long as a dog.

Who's Who Today

JAMES CARL PENNEY.

New York thought it has discovered an unknown man when one James Carl Penney came to the public eye through the announcement that he had doubled his life insurance to $8,000,000. J. C. Penney, however, has long been known throughout the west as the operator of 372 stores in twenty-six states.

He started out in his career as a merchant by selling a litter of pigs and today he is worth $5,000,000. He is now a millionaire.

Penney was born in Hamilton, Missouri, in September, 1874. He received a high school education and was married at twenty-four. His first job in a department store paid him a salary of $100 a month. Then he went to Denver where he also worked in a dry goods store. He made good and was sent by his firm to manage a branch store in Evansville, Ind.

Here he saved $500 which was his capital for his first venture in Commerce, Wyo. That first of his stores now run by the company, as the central purchasing agency, was run on a partnership basis, as all the stores are now run.

Penney owned one-third interest.

Today the chain keeps growing for when an employee shows promise he is promoted to management of a store and if he succeeds in making money enough in the business to obtain a partnership, he becomes a partner in that store. Money to be invested in the business must have been made in the business. No outsider can buy in.

This is the method by which Penney became wealthy. He is interested in many things, his net interest being his 475-acre farm in New York state, and his 40 acres at White Plains, N. Y., where he has his home. He has a winter home at Miami, Fla.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE NAGGING EVIL

A common excuse for resorting to physicians is that "a tired feeling," a bad taste, or a sallow complexion is due to an "inactive liver." This is not the liver as the anatomy to discuss. Cirrhosis or hardening of the liver, cancer of the liver, abscess of the liver and many other diseases are far more serious. Doctors even recognize impaired liver function, as determined by scientific tests, not by the complaint or symptoms, but by the patient. Curative and restorative treatment of liver function produces none of the old time alimanic "symptoms" of "torpid liver." And not one of the apparently phsyical or chemical increases of the liver's function, but the slightest appreciable degree increases or improves the function of the liver exercise does.

The layman's conception of "auto-intoxication" is a vague but sinister poisoning of the blood or system by waste matter in the intestine. That is a plausible notion to the mind of the layman. To the scientific mind the notion is absurd. The truth is that in every case of constipation no absorption of poisonous matter occurs. The unpleasant sensations of the victim of this auto-intoxication delusion, are demonstrably due to either fatty acid or other waste matter in the large intestine. Doctors are anxious to know so much "which isn't so" about auto-intoxication and its alleged cause of constipation. The physician's conception of auto-intoxication has no particular reference to intestinal function but relates rather to the formation of abnormal products of metabolism in the blood. Of course constipation cannot affect that.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Pop Corn.

Does the eating of much popcorn thin the blood or dry up the blood? Should a thin person wishing to gain weight avoid eating it? Has pop corn any value? (R. O. C.)

Answer.—Pop corn neither dries nor thins the blood. Puffed for pound, it is a good food or calorie value than bread or beef. As usually eaten, with butter or other fat or sweets on it, pop corn is a high calorie food. A thin person need not avoid it nor need a fat person avoid it—just take it in moderation.

How Cereals.

Is it harmful to eat uncooked oatmeal, uncooked wheat, uncooked rice, raw carrots? (T. W. M.)

Answer.—No, rather beneficial. If you like such things raw.

Is it right for a child 2 1/2 years old to eat two or three fresh eggs every day? My doctor says it is too much. (Mrs. D.)

Answer.—It was your friend who said it is right.

Bunions.

Please give me a cure for bunions or recommend something to give relief. (M. R. W.)

Answer.—Operation on the affected joint is the only cure for bunions. The pain and soreness may be relieved by applying a large wet poultice dressing over night—wet with water mixed with salt, or with alcohol, or toilet water or any highly alcoholic evaporating lotion.

The Third Brady Symptom.

For stamp enclosed please send me the New Brady symphony for the reduction of flesh. (Miss G. J.)

Answer.—I intended the first symphony to overcome that futile feeling, the second or New Brady, and yet I have done that and also relieve that fat feeling. I haven't written a symphony for reducing flesh. If I do permit any such thing it will be called the Grand Dirge. Always enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope if you wish a reply.

Painting the Soap.

I use physicians and surgeons' vegetable compound soap and yet I have large pores. (Miss W. P. O.)

Answer.—That recalls to mind the man who drove and took care of his own car for four years and yet taught a class in Sunday school. I know nothing of the soap you use. Apply to the fact that you are not one of the following lotions, allowing it to dry on and washing it off with cold water next morning.

Zinc sulphate.....1 gram
Potassium sulphate.....1 gram
Rose water.....1 ounce
This is a mixture and should be shaken up before it is applied.

Hygiene Jammin' Style.

I do not agree with my hygiene teacher about some things and would appreciate your opinion on these questions particularly.

1. Is it harmful to take milk with oranges?
2. Is it harmful to drink water when you are eating bananas?
3. Is it harmful to eat potatoes, rice, bread, cake or pie at the same meal with meat and vegetables?
4. Is it harmful to eat fruit jams or jellies with bread?
5. Does pasteurizing milk destroy any of its valuable properties? (J. H. H.)

Answer.—1. No, not if you like such a combination. 2. No. 3. No. 4. Yes, pasteurization at least diminishes the vitamin content of milk and probably renders the milk somewhat less digestible and less nutritious than clean raw milk.

HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1922

This should be a fairly fortunate day, although there are sinister influences apparent, according to astrology. Jupiter and Venus are in strongly benefic aspect, while Mars is adverse.

Planning for the new year is subject to the most favorable direction of the stars today. It is a time to look forward with the assurance that what is most desired may come to pass.

College heads and educators of every class have the best promise of advancement in the planetary government that will mark the coming months.

There is a particularly good sign for librarians who will find means of more thorough co-operation with insular groups of students and colleges.

Dealers in women's wear should profit greatly at this time which is especially conducive to increase of trade.

Women should discover that the day's influences are most important in assuring success for their projects, financial as well as social.

It is read as a lucky wedding day that assures for the bride a certain sort of dominance.

Theaters should prosper well while this configuration prevails, although there may be rather a falling off of patronage later.

Much dancing is to mark the coming year when there will be renewed interest in all sorts of amusement, not really a good sign since it presages national stress of some kind. Mars in the sixth opposed to Neptune and in square to Mercury is evil for workers, who may find the winter exceedingly stressful.

Clergymen may find resentment on the part of certain classes who differ from them in regard to public policies. The signs that presage bitter controversies are definite.

Persons whose birthdays it is probably will have rather an unsettled year. The young will court and marry.

Children born on this day may be impressionable and artistic, but generous and dependable.

The Wall Flower

By MARION RUBINCAM

Synopsis of preceding chapters. Pandora Nicholson is shy to a painful degree. She lives with her high spirited cousin, Gladys, and her Aunt Maude and Uncle Peter Nicholson, as a sort of a poor relation. Her father, Jim, is then employed by Peter. Dora is accepted and neglected by the little circle in Norris City over which Gladys rules. Gladys has all the attention. Dora has no friends until Morton Newberry, shy and quiet himself, finds himself attracted to her. A sweet little friendship begins to ripen into real mutual love, when Gladys suddenly becomes cross every time they see each other.

TRIUMPH

Chapter 23
There is no need to linger too long over the details of the first Sunday that Morton took Gladys away from Dora and making him devoted to herself.

After that one disastrous evening, Dora herself made no attempt to stop Gladys. She sat dumbly, passively, as she did in everything, and let Gladys have a clear field.

"If he cares for me," she argued to herself, "then Gladys cannot make him care for her. And if he doesn't, what could I do to make him like me more?"

She might have learned, had she been capable of learning coquetry just how this sort of thing was done. Gladys, of course, used subtle means. She went straight after her man with a frankness and abandon that deceived no one.

"I do believe she's interested in Morton," Aunt Maude remarked to her husband the first Sunday that Morton came out and walked—not with Dora, but with Gladys. Gladys saw to it that Dora had to stay home that day.

"If she isn't," she's making an awful fool of herself," Peter commented with paternal frankness. "She's made Jesse mad already. I heard him say he wasn't coming out again. The other boys will drop off too."

The other boys did. It was whispered that Jesse had been "jilted," he had to stand a lot of teasing about that. In return, he ill naturally said:

"A big flirt like her couldn't stand seeing another girl looked at, so was making a bee line for Freddie-Race Morton."

Then he pretended to be quite pleased to be out of it, and sent a large box of chocolates from Dyer's to Mary Lawton and a letter asking permission to call. This was considered a delicate attention in Norris City.

Meanwhile, at Gladys's insistence, Peter put a telephone in the farmhouse. Pandora, working about the house, heard at least one phone call.

DUTY TO ONESELF

"It's all very well to praise Mrs. M. for looking young," a discontented woman remarked in my hearing this morning. "She has a beautiful mind and body—how many of them spend it so? I know half a dozen who spend it cultivating discontent, and the ugly wrinkles that this stamps over the face. Not all wealthy women are this way, mental activity is becoming a fashion too. As for going away—some of them are improved by travel, but not all. But this is almost a sermon and I didn't mean it so."

Probably every woman so well fixed should look 25 at 30, and yet few of them do. This oversight remark started me thinking—and I couldn't get it out of my mind. Too much rich food and not enough exercise, the ever ready car instead of a good walk, means that a lot of temptation—these mean flesh, a lost figure, foot, and goodness knows how many ailments as well. Country clubs are helping poor rich friends out of all this, but still I think of the woman who does her own work and her own errands has the advantage.

I doubt it. For one thing, money spoils so many women, which is sad enough. But sadder yet, leisure spoils a great many more. Too much rich food and not enough exercise, the ever ready car instead of a good walk, means that a lot of temptation—these mean flesh, a lost figure, foot, and goodness knows how many ailments as well. Country clubs are helping poor rich friends out of all this, but still I think of the woman who does her own work and her own errands has the advantage.

As for the leisure that might be spent cultivating a beautiful mind and body—how many of them spend it so? I know half a dozen who spend it cultivating discontent, and the ugly wrinkles that this stamps over the face. Not all wealthy women are this way, mental activity is becoming a fashion too. As for going away—some of them are improved by travel, but not all. But this is almost a sermon and I didn't mean it so."

Daily Reader—I'm glad you liked the talks on permanently waved hair. No, it didn't do my hair a bit of harm. At the end of six months there's still a bit of wave left, just a pleasant trace that I like better than the flat curliness. Of course, it didn't "take" well with me—I fancy it would with you since your hair is fairly dry. It's expensive, but if well done, quite harmless. No reputable hair dresser will wave hair that would be hurt by it, that's why I say so often, go only to the best beauty shop. And if you are going to travel it is a boon for Breakfast: Wheat Cereal, Omelet, Top Milk. Bread, Coffee, Butter. Lunch: Cream of Pea Soup, Waldorf Salad, Bread, Tea, Butter. Dinner: Baked Ham with Potatoes, Fruit Salad, Tapioca Lemon Pie, Coffee.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Roasted Ham with Pineapple—Roast a slice of ham cut one inch thick, cover with milk and small piece of butter, bake one-half hour. Dice potatoes, add to ham and milk and bake one and one-half hours longer. Season with salt and pepper.

Prune Salad—Prunes, lettuce, chopped peanuts, mayonnaise and peanut butter. Cook prunes as if for sauce, but omit sugar. Cool, remove stones and fill cavity with peanut butter. Arrange lettuce leaves and sprinkle with chopped peanuts. Serve with mayonnaise. If prunes are large allow about four to each person.

Tapioca Lemon Pie—Three parts of a box of minute tapioca, one-half cup sugar, one lemon; grated rind and juice. Yolk of two eggs. Toss the white with a teaspoon sugar for the top. Mix your tapioca in just a minute. Add the sugar, eggs, lemon. Make a crust and fill your pie pan. It won't run over. It will raise and your crust will be a nice brown.

Darning Made Easier—All kinds of darning can be done on the sewing machine. It is not at all necessary to have one of the patented, much-advertised darning attachments. Simply remove the presser foot. Hold material firmly with both hands, moving it forward and back from side to side at will. With a short stitch and fine thread this will make a smooth, invisible darning.

Save Cold Biscuits—Place cold biscuits in the stove and brown until hard. Then crumb or run through a food chopper, place in a dry glass jar and use with cold cream. The crumbs and give a much better flavor than many other thickening substances.

To Freshen Vegetables—To freshen stale vegetables soak for an hour in cold water to which the juice of a lemon has been added.

Prologues are becoming an established part of the programs at moving picture houses now. With two houses in Janesville, the Apollo and the Myers, it is not surprising that the prologue has also been taken up by the Beverly. At the first of this week at the Beverly, with an Elmer Hammerman story, "Three Live Ghosts," is on the same order, while the nature of the picture would allow, has also had them. AT THE APOLLO.
A reputation such as that of the winninger brother—John included—have, could be worked up in no other way than by offering good plays, well played and staged, year after year, and that is what these companies have done. They give the people plays that have attained much renown from long runs in the city, and play them in such a way that the theater here is usually filled at every performance. Among the plays to be given here are "The Nightcap," "Stop Live Ghosts," "Three Live Ghosts," "The Girl in the Red Velvet Dress," "The Seventh Guest." As the last shows, there are many comedies. The opening play, seen here some weeks ago, played by an interior company, contains much comedy as well as mystery. "Three Live Ghosts" is on the same order, while the nature of the others can be judged by the titles.

AT THE MYERS.
Just two weeks after their first charity matinee, the Myers will have another, this one to be a garment drive for the children of the city. The play to be given here is "The Nightcap," which is an especially fitting picture for children to see. Taken direct from the book, the story is an interesting one, telling of the struggles of a young American of Irish and Spanish blood to retain his inheritance in Southern California. The atmosphere of this country is said to be well given, and the scenery is beautiful. Forrest Stanley plays the part of Don Mike, while Marjorie Daw is the pretty heroine. Equally important as the picture will be the appearance at each performance of the Royal Tropical Marimba band, originating in Guatemala. All seven players are Spaniards, each a Valentino, while the soprano soloist, Elena Camacho, is also Spanish. They will play a number of popular, as well as opera pieces. An open week made it possible for them to play here, as they have been playing only such theaters as the Daland and Katz string in Chicago.

Fort Atkinson
The Ghost Breaker, for the end of the week, this also closing Christmas Eve, is an excellent picture for straight entertainment. Scenes are in southern Kentucky and in a deserted and haunted castle of Spain, owned by the lovely Marchesa, and entered by Warren Jarvis to rid it of ghosts generations old who have spoiled the castle for any use. Wallace Reid, Lila Lee and Walter Hiers, the last named as a negro servant, play in this comedy, one of the best of several months. The usual vaudeville bill will be shown in connection with the picture.

MURDER CHARGED IN SHACK DEATH

Partner of Man Whose Body Was Burned Is Held as Slayer.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Iron Mountain, Mich. — A charge of murder will be preferred against Gus Matton of the town of Alfred, Mich., as a result of investigations conducted by District Attorney J. C. Knight and Sheriff A. P. Parrot into the death of John Limery, whose charred body was found in his shack, a short distance from Alfred, Thursday morning. District Attorney Knight announced.

Matton is in county jail awaiting preliminary hearing.

According to the district attorney, county officials have gathered evidence that Limery was shot by a man who sought to obtain possession of his farm and that the Limery cabin was afterward burned to conceal the crime.

Chicago—The United States Labor board, in a decision, upheld its former stand denying maintenance of way men time and one-half after eight hours' work and on Sundays and holidays.

Blind Students to Give Cantata, "A Gift Divine"

The Christmas service at the Wisconsin School for Blind will be held in the school gymnasium at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. This year the services will be the rendering of the Christmas cantata, "A Gift Divine" by R. M. Stults. The program follows:

Introduction, organ. Miss Anna K. Means, opening chorus, "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem."

Part I—"The Incarnation" based on the story of the birth of Christ. "And the Angel Gabriel Was Sent from God." Part II—"The Child Grew and Waxed Strong." Sophronia Peterson; semi-chorus, baritone solo, Edwin Andrews; chorus—"Hark! These Strains of Auld Voices; organ postlude.

Part III—"The Babe of Bethlehem." Organ prelude, Miss Anna K. Means; chorus—"There Were Shepherds Abiding in the Fields;" alto solo—"And the Child Grew and Waxed Strong." Sophronia Peterson; semi-chorus, baritone solo, Edwin Andrews; chorus—"Hark! These Strains of Auld Voices; organ postlude.

JEFFERSON

Jefferson—A "dairymen's mixer," held at Bender's hall Friday night was a big success with a home talent play entitled "The Dairymen's Conference" as the feature.

The cast was composed of the following: "The County Holstein secretary, A. P. Gaffie; Charles Fleming, The County Cheesemaking Secretary, J. C. Reider; Louis Schmidt, President of the Cow Testing association, Henry Lalle; Aaron Keuler; The Official Tester, Clarence Bragg; William Stark; A. New Orleans, Cow Buyer, Daniel Black; William Behrke; A Disappointed Farmer, Alexander Green; John Wenderow; A Hard Headed Farmer, Enoch Hardie; George Klusich; Mrs. Green, Mrs. Aaron Keuler; Mrs. Lalle; Mrs. Louis Erdman; Chairman of the Conference, John Jacobson; J. M. Coyner.

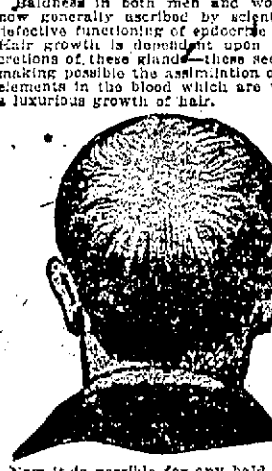

Besides the home talent play which created much amusement because of the impersonation of prominent persons in the dairy business in Jefferson county, there was music by the orchestra which also played for the dancing, reading by Vera, Helen, Margaret, Margaret Stark and vocalists by Arthur Vincent, all of Jefferson.

In Jefferson Churches Sunday—Evangelical church—Sunday school, 10 a. m. No preaching services at 12 because of quarterly meeting at Holensville, which will be conducted by the Rev. W. C. ## Glands Used To Restore Hair Growth Science of Gland Therapy Relieves Baldness—New Treatment Restores Health and Growth.

Baldness in both men and women is now generally ascribed by scientists to defective glands. The concentration of hair growth is dependent upon the secretions of these glands—these secretions making possible the growth of the elements in the blood which are vital to a luxurious growth of hair.

Now it is possible for any bald person to have a growth of hair again, by passing through the discovery of Dr. Alexander, nationally known scientist. Dr. Alexander's treatment concentrates on the glands, can supply the deficiency of gland secretion and produce a full growth of hair.

This discovery may be easily used in the privacy of your own home. Within a few weeks you will notice new, vigorous hair beginning to come in and with this growth you will gradually restore your hair to its former bright, healthy color.

So confident is Dr. Alexander that you can be relieved of the embarrassment of baldness and regain the normal hair growth, that he has decided to offer to send a full $2.00 treatment on free trial to anyone who will write for it. Use it according to directions and at the end of a month you do not find your hair returning to its former vigor, the treatment does not cost a cent.

SEND NO MONEY—just your name and address to Alexander Laboratories, 140 Gateway Station, Kansas City, Mo., and this treatment will be mailed at once. Try it, it is coming to doctors and if at the end of a month you are not more than satisfied with results, your money will be refunded at once. A big Kansas City bank guarantees that Dr. Alexander is reliable and holds $1,000 cash as guarantee to refund your money if you wish. Don't suffer the embarrassment of baldness—give the treatment a trial on this liberal offer.

Fast Badger Five Bumps the R.F.B.'s; Monroe High Wins

Monroe—The fast and clever Monroe Badgers took a full out of the Janesville R. F. B.'s here Friday night, 35 to 11. Monroe's tight defense held the smashes of the visitors at bay.

Taylor, highest point getter last year in the Big Ten conference, played right forward for Monroe, exhibiting a wonderful floor game. He and Reed accounted for the largest part of the winning score.

Janesville's defense was poor, while their basket eye game fell. Wardfield played a stellar game for Janesville.

In a preliminary game, the Orangeville high school, coached by Floyd Reynier who was at Janesville last year, lost to Monroe high, 12 to 10.

New Enterprises Do Not Come Into a City Where Local Firms are Having Poor Success

If you were selecting a city in which to open up a new business, what would you consider? The very first thing which would make a good or bad impression upon your mind would be the success with which the firms already in that city were meeting. If that city had business houses struggling along on a "hand-to-mouth" basis, you would not give it a second thought. On the other hand, if the city has thriving, bustling, busy, concerns, you will give it long and studied consideration. But remember, that the success of business houses is determined by the support they receive from the public. This is true of Janesville manufacturers. If Janesville people will not support Janesville enterprises, how can Janesville ever expect to get new ones?

Being the Unsolved Mystery of Edwin MacFarland as told by Manuscripts found after the Hyatt House fire in Janesville; to which is added a few incidents by Peter B. Western, late of the C. S. A. of Missouri.

Written for the Janesville Gazette and copyrighted by the Gazette Printing Company, 1922. All rights reserved.

—In Which the Trunk Appears

In Which The Trunk Appears
MUST WARN The reader that he will never be satisfied with this story. I am not. It is not because I have failed to weigh all the possible theories in reference to Edwin J. MacFarland and the tragedy which began with the Hyatt House in Janesville and ended long years afterward, but there are secrets hidden in the innermost chambers of the mind of man and into these I have not been able to delve.

to do I intend to vouch for the truth of some of the statements which have come to me. I have failed to find a record of the tragedy of room 52 at the Bryant house, either in the files of the Gazette or other newspapers. I have been unable to locate the Clives family. It is possible that in his desire to protect the name of the family, since there evidently are some of them living, either the author of the manuscript, or Peter B. Western used a pseudonym. It is possible that he may have been inconsequential details.

It is then for you to write the last chapter and the explanation, to solve the mystery of Richard Benjamin Littleton and Edwin J. Harrison. I am sure that in whatever manner you may do so will be pleasing to me. I have my own theory and it is comforting—but it still may be wrong.

I claim no skill in story writing. True, I have read many, and know that a story is all the rules should be written in a series of chapters leading through a direct line to an orderly climax which should be more or less inevitable. But I have never seen an orderly story in a well constructed story that it has become almost trite. The setting may be different but the story itself is old and has been told in one way or many times. We object to the endings which are tragic although we may welcome the unexpected. Unlike the play, unfolding on the stage, we have to see the story unfold in its chapters and finding out how it will end and if, all concerned, except the villain, are happy ever after. We grow intimately friendly with some of the characters and we do not have to see the story progress. Fiction, failing in the essential of punishing the wicked and rewarding the virtuous, is revolutionary and savors of the new order. It is a pity, therefore, that such an anarchy in literature and its swarms over the ramparts of convention, behind which the best seller dwells in safety, and sweeps all before him, at the time it is placed up his books in a second hand store.

All the great living literature in life has its beginning and its happy ending and the reader is comfortably and complacently satisfied. But this is not the case with the novel. It is impossible to write the story of the suitcase trunk in any such manner.

It is also quite possible that this story would never have been written if it had not been for that hostelry famous all over the Northwest in the late 50's and the early 60's, burned to the ground in the early morning of a beautiful day in the month of June, 1968, a greeting highway with a fierceness which seemed to have behind it some evil power. It lapped up the great structure of the corner hotel, the great structure of the corner hotel, and in a few hours the hotel was merely a memory. In the light of its flames, the half-dressed people of the city were set out with white, frightened faces, and they were swept away in a background of dawning day as though they had assembled as witnesses to a tragedy involving all of the "Molesta" pretty freely twinkling in the waters of the Aege, made William the Norman, conqueror of England," writes Mr. Cr  ay in his Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World. The twinkling of the stars in the starry history and changed the complexion of the world in political and sociological ways. If the calfskin trunk had not been rescued from the fire, it would not have been written 55 years afterward. The trunk had been in the hotel for almost two years. Its storage was paid for more than that. It had been in the storeroom and in everybody's way. The hotel was such trunks in those days. We had begun to emerge into the paper trunk stage of civilization—cheap and shoddy. The trunk was a small, round, steamer affair, covered with calfskin, hair out, studded thickly with brass nails, bound with a heavy leather strap and a brass buckle, locked with a padlock. It was a small, shoddy affair which accented with the weight and thickness of the boards from which it had been fashioned, was arriving at that period where it was a trifle too heavy and an antique than a trifle.

There was only one identification. Tacked to the top and again to the ends of the trunk were cards written in ink bearing this inscription, "Ed-J. MacFarland, Florissant, Mo. If for any reason it is necessary to remove this trunk, please notify as above."

No one remembered just when the trunk came to the Hyatt House. All that was known was that the trunk got to be "a thing" there in the afternoon of the day before the fire, the clerk had received either a note or a message—he afterward was sure it was a message, from someone to remove the trunk from the storehouse and haul it to the hotel on the St. Paul station the following day.

The porter rubbed his eyes when he heard the fire crackling. He was too only man half awake. Rushing about he dragged the trunk, standing on the "top" door, to a small alcove where the outgoing baggage was kept, into the street.

And that is the way always. It is so when there is a fire. The flat trunks are carried gently to a place of safety and the mirrors and brasses are taken down and put in a safe. In her room on the top floor, a servant girl burned to death that morning and for hours it was thought guests, too, had perished.

Arlotta's feet, shining white in the river of Aare, intrigued Robert, Duke of Normandy, and she became the mistress of the king. He was a conqueror and he conquered England at the battle of Hastings. So it was that for no particular reason, the trunk was loaded into a dray and hauled to the river. There came the day when the other rescued and salvaged things which had been saved and which, too, had been carried off by the drayman, and the trunk was taken to the boatmen to the address on the trunk were returned unclaimed later.

"Maybe someone will come after it," said the boatman.

into an out-of-the-way corner of his barn and forgot it. It may be said that here began the real career of the calfskin trunk. It was ten years later when the druggist was moving to Nebraska, and began to load a car with his household goods, that he came upon the trunk, rotting a little, the hair at the corners worn away. He was about to toss it into the rubbish heap. Fala, standing by, held her breath for a moment. But there was room in the car for many more things than the drayman had. He reached down and tried to open the lid but it was securely locked and he, being in a hurry, tossed it on the wagon and later it was placed in the loft of the new barn in Nebraska.

Children grew up and went away and the mother died. The drayman lived alone for a time and he, too, was called away to join the wife. So the children came back and picked out a few things from the old and faded furniture and the rest was put up at auction.

Peter E. Western, former member of the armies of the south, one of the sharpshooters of the Missouri troops, had made a name for himself. He had been in the war and kept the village safe. He, with a crown, ed Obner Harroun, late of the 47th Ohio V. Y. Inf., a member of the G. A. R., out with Western an inexpressible amount of money. The crowd, the winning of the Spotsylvania, drove out to the gate to mingle with the crowd and gossip with neighbors. A sale is as much a social event, usually, as it is a method of disposing of property. The auctioneer, sitting in the buggy, watched the auctioneer and his antics, showing only slight interest, until the caulked trunk was put on the platform. Western, a slight, thin, quick man, with a pair of spectacles, the goods were shown, examined the

It isn't fair to blame the weather man for the weather. Where one man wants rain another is crying for the sun, about the only thing all are agreed on is that hail never brings benefit. But unfortunately it will hail, every year has its disastrous storms. And every hail storm means the destruction of crops. Hail Insurance will pay all your losses. and corn cobs that remained and were looked fervently at Harroun. Trying the old trunk on the rear of his buggy, while listening to the jeering of the friends who crowded about congratulating him on his purchase. Western met the better good naturedly and drove away.

Thus the trunk may be said to have entered upon its last change in fortune and to find a home for its declining years. Western had it carried to his room—he still remained a bachelor—and after supper, at the Tavern returned to the room, locked the door and, with a pinch bar, pried open the lid.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

PIERRE DU PONT
AND CHEVROLETRemarkable Story of Comeback of the Auto—Janesville
One of Units.

If the men responsible for the "come back" of Chevrolet ever fully possess their consciences the public will be treated to a most romantic story. Here is a company which got so badly in the doldrums that it virtually breathed through the financial oxygen tank of its parent General Motors and in a year has become one of the corporation's most valuable units, says a Detroit letter in the Wall Street Journal.

Production comparisons give perhaps the best picture of what has happened. In nine months of 1922 Chevrolet turned out 176,771 cars against 45,000 for corresponding nine months of 1921. Value for nine months of 1922, $89,029,489 compared with $22,663,402 for the entire year 1921. Reduced to basis of average monthly sales the 1922 rate is $9,890,000 against $2,407,000. Estimate for all of 1922 is 240,000 cars.

Improvement in the Model.
Chevrolet began in July, 1921, to build a better product. New front axle bearings were adopted, a better rear axle made and an improved clutch developed. Every part of the car which gave trouble was redesigned. Some idea of how thorough the "480" Chevrolet has been remade may be gained from the engineer's report. In the body and too there were 25 changes, in the front axle and wheels 10, in the rear axle six, in the transmission seven, in the motor 10, and in the chassis 10 changes. Total number of changes between July 1, 1921, and July 1, 1922, was 68.

Not satisfied with these Chevrolet made 25 additional changes. In the 1922 model which is now having such a remarkable run of sales. Officials who have been responsible for the improvements modestly say: "We have only followed the dictates of the public. Everybody knows a low priced car is now beyond the poker or the circus stage. People have not time to stop at any side show—they want to go right into the business." The official who made this remark is probably the least known in public press among motor wizards. A year from now when Chevrolet reaches the 2,000 daily production goal, the car prevalent upon the roads will bear the name of his hand with the Chevrolet achievement, but at present he threatens to throw the Wall Street Journal's correspondent out the window.

Economies in Operation.

An illustration of operating economies is in the changed method of handling closed cars. Formerly bodies were built by an outside company, shipped to Flint and there attached to chassis. Four or five in a freight car was the maximum. Now the company buys bodies from its associated Fisher Body Co. knocked down. It ships more than 50 in a freight car to the assembling plants with an obvious freight and time saving. Furthermore the labor cost of assembling is reduced, as the body is much nearer delivery to purchaser. Chevrolet in this respect is closely following the Ford assembly idea but possibly going one better in the use of closed bodies. To economize further on closed body manufacture and delivery Fisher Body Co. eventually will have a body plant alongside each Chevrolet assembling plant. In Flint Chevrolet has its engine plant and assembling plant and Fisher is building a body plant exclusively for Chevrolet bodies on adjoining ground.

How closely Fisher is expanding to accommodate Chevrolet may be seen in a list of Chevrolet assembling plants placed alongside Fisher body plants completed or in process outside of Detroit and Cleveland:

Chevrolet
Flint (engine, assembly) ..... body plant
St. Louis (assembly) ..... body plant
Oakland (assembly) ..... body plant
Janesville (assembly) ..... body plant
Cincinnati (assembly) ..... body plant
Buffalo (assembly) ..... body plant
Tarrytown (assembly) ..... under construction
Bay City (engine parts) ..... under construction
Toledo (transmission) ..... Detroit (assembly)

Chevrolet has 14 plants in operation and as its business expands several additional branches in other strategically located cities will be built.

It will be noticed that the Janesville plant is like those in other cities, an assembly unit with a body plant next door.

The Outstanding Figures.
Three men stand prominently in the Chevrolet resuscitation though each denies his part. They are Pierre S. du Pont, Colin Campbell and W. S. Knudsen. Mr. du Pont, though not generally known as a body plant architect, is the man who has conceived the resuscitation plans. He has fathered the movement and the others, under his general guidance, have done the building in their respective fields.

Mr. Campbell, vice president in charge of sales, began July 1, 1921, one of the most intensive missions.

Sensational Rise
in Sterling Main
Feature of Week

[An Associated Press.]
New York—Chief interest in the financial markets this week centered on the sensational rise in sterling exchange, demand bills touching 40 1/2, the highest price since March, 1919, and nearly 12 cents above last Saturday's closing quotation. A subsequent reaction sent the price back to 38 1/2.

Stock and bond prices moved to slightly higher ground in the week's irregular dealings. Specialties in which there are extra or stock dividends possibilities received a special deal of attention with standard shares generally showing fewer material changes.

Steel shares were active and strong. U. S. Steel common touched 29 1/2, the highest price in more than three months. Establishment of a new high price for copper at 14 1/2 a pound, combined with speculative belief that the proposed Anaconda Chile merger would reduce the competition now afforded by South American coppers stimulated activity at rising prices in the copper group.

Definite progress toward two rail-way mergers was made during the week. Directors of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad announced their intention of acquiring the International and Great Northern. Vanderbilt interests were reported to have obtained an option on the majority holdings in the Chesapeake and Ohio. Car loadings for the week ending Dec. 7 showed a decrease of 17,000 cars below the week before.

Most of the European exchanges moved to higher ground during the week in sympathy with the rise in sterling. Dutch guilders touched 2.25 for the first time in two years and Swedish kronen duplicated their previous high.

Call money was plentiful most of the week with four per cent the ruling rate.

The Heavens in December

The Eastern evening sky is now a blaze of glory of first-magnitude stars. The great constellation of Orion, which we described last month, has climbed well above the horizon by map time and is following closely in the East by the two brilliant dog stars, Sirius, the Greater Dog, and Procyon, the Lesser. To the north of these and higher up in the sky are the great stars of the Great Bear. Preceding Orion is Taurus, the Bull, with the first-magnitude star Aldebaran, and well to the north of this is Capella, the She-Goat. Besides these second-magnitude stars are found in this region in large numbers, adding greatly to the interest and admiration which this section of the heavens has always inspired in both naked-eye and telescope observers. In the Western sky four more first-magnitude stars are to be found. The great triangle composed of Arcturus, Deneb and Altair is now low over the horizon, and on next month's map Deneb alone will find a place. From Altair, the brightest star of the constellation of Pegasus, Australia, the Southern Fish, is also low down over the Southwestern horizon and will disappear from our maps for many months to come.

December Planets.
Of the planets, Mars and Uranus alone appear on the map. The former is in the Western sky low down over the horizon and sets shortly after midnight. Mars is moving away from the earth and its magnitude steadily is declining. It was at its brightest in June, when its stellar magnitude was about minus 1.2, and one-tenth, whereas by the end of this month it will have fallen back to plus first, which is only one-seventeenth as brilliant as the former.

On the 26th Mars and Uranus will be very close to each other in conjunction—but unfortunately Uranus is a very poor object for the naked-eye astronomer, as its magnitude is only the sixth, just on the border line of visibility without instruments.

Venus has become a morning star and will be observable in the South-eastern sky before sunrise by the end of the month. Jupiter and Saturn are both now visible and will remain in this relation to the sun until spring.

It is not often that we call attention to our neighbor the moon. But winter brings with it particularly fine moonlight nights in which we must all take pleasure, although the radiance of the moon does dim that of the stars and makes the lesser stars practically invisible to the naked eye. No doubt the reader has often noticed that the moon not only rises and sets like all other celestial bodies, but that it attains very different heights in the sky. In December the

GENERAL MOTORS
CORPORATION

I doubt whether most people have the faintest conception of the magnitude of General Motors Corporation of today. General Motors in its magnitude is one of the marvels of the modern industrial world. Ponder these facts and figures, keeping prominently in mind that this enterprise is only twelve years old:

Its total assets exceed $500,000,000.

Its capital stock amounts to $210,000,000.

It comprises 67 divisions, meaning 67 subsidiary and affiliated companies, all contributing to motor production and distribution.

It has plants located in 35 cities in the United States and Canada.

It occupies more than 1,500 buildings, covering more than 2,000 acres of land.

It utilizes a total floor space of 35,000,000 square feet.

It makes one of every six motor cars in the United States today—the grand total exceeds 20,000,000 passenger and commercial cars.

It has been turning out 45,000 cars a month, equal to 1,750 cars every day or 18 cars every five minutes of an eight-hour day.

Its employees aggregate 70,000, not counting dealers or service men.

It has 70,000 stockholders.

Behind it are the greatest banking houses in the world today—J. P. Morgan & Company—and one of the ablest and most successful industrial families in America—the du Ponts.

It has a Research Corporation which spends over two million dollars a year under the direction of C. F. Kettering, "the Edison of the motor industry."

It has an Acceptance Corporation to finance domestic and foreign sales which handles upwards of $100,000,000 of business a year.

It has two housing corporations to look after the providing of housing for employees.

KIPPLING ON THE AMERICAN WOMEN

Thirty years ago Rudyard Kipling found the American girl above compare. In "American Notes" he said of her:

"Sweet and comely are the maidens of Devonshire, delicate and gracious seeming those who live in the pleasant places of London; fascinating for all their demureness the damsels of France clinging closely to their mothers and with large eyes wondering at the wicked world; excellent in her own place and to those who understand her is the Anglo-Indian 'spit' in her second season; but the girls of America are above and beyond them.

They are clever; they can talk. You, it is said that they think. They are instructed in the folly and vanity of the male mind, for they have associated with 'the boys' from boyhood, and can discerningly minister to both vices, or pleasantly snub the prosessor. As a corollary of their own poets have said: Man is fire and woman is tow.

And the devil he comes and be-gins to blow.
"In America the tow is soaked in a solution that makes it fire-proof. In absolute liberty and large knowledge, consequently, accidents do not exceed the regular percentage arranged by the devil for each class and climate under the skies."

Who Buys Bonds
On Partial Payments?

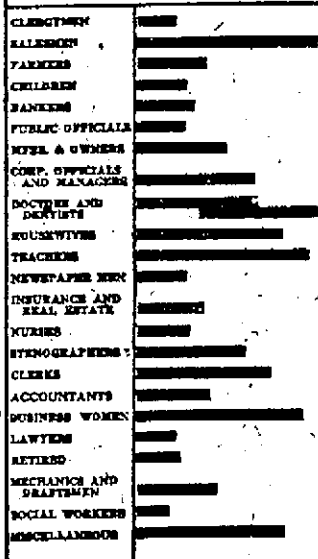

Contrary to the general impression, which perhaps you share, users of our Partial Payment Plan are not confined to the $100 investor, nor to any one class of people.

There are numbered among the folks who invest in $500 and $1000 denominations a very prominent Milwaukee lawyer, a vice-president of one of Wisconsin's famous industries, a principal of one of Milwaukee's largest schools, a surgeon of wide reputation, a business woman successfully established in her own business, plus the many others whom you see included in the accompanying chart.

It is a plan which can be successfully and profitably used by both the experienced investor and the beginner. It helps you follow that famous bit of advice, "Young man, if you would succeed, get into debt." A sound bond is a debt worth paying for and a 10% payment insures present prices and interest rates.

Dear Santa Claus:—

I should like Johnny to have a Christmas present this year that he will thank me for every day of his life.

Kindly start a Savings Account in his name with the enclosed dollar and put the pass book in his stocking on Christmas eve.

I think he'll have fun watching his account grow when I explain how his savings will be increased by the interest added by your bank.

Hold me responsible for seeing to it that Johnny has something to add to his account every week. When he is older he will take over that responsibility himself. I think he'll have the saving instinct by that time. That will be a REAL gift.

Your old pal,
Dad.

Twenty-two thousand delegates and visitors attended the congress last year, and it was everywhere regarded as the greatest good roads meeting ever held.

Back in 1499, or thereabouts, one Leonardo da Vinci, a painter of note, had the unconventional habit of smudging the imprint of his thumb in the wet paint of his completed canvasses. Now, 423 years later, one of those thumbprints is to be determined in a $500,000 lawsuit. The suit was brought by Mrs. Andree Hahn, an art collector, who seeks to recover $500,000 because Sir Joseph Duvener, celebrated art connoisseur and dealer of New York and London, declared that her painting, "La Belle Ferroniere," was not the work of da Vinci. Mrs. Hahn, who is the wife of Capt. Harry J. Hahn, former U. S. army aviator, declares that Duvener's adverse decision prevented the sale of the work to the Kansas City Institute for $500,000. She inherited the portrait from her father, the Marquis de La-doux, of Brittany. The work is the portrait of Lucrécia Crivelli, mistress of Francis I of France. If she can prove the thumbprint on her canvas is that of da Vinci, Mrs. Hahn expects to win her suit.

The influence of the United States is expected to be a determining factor in the final decisions of the delegates meeting at the Lausanne Near East peace parley. Though not officially represented at the deliberations, the American observers, led by Ambassador Child and Minister Grew, carry considerable weight among the delegates and already have caused a split between the Russian and Turkish delegations by their insistence on the freedom of the Dardanelles.

Triple Honors Voted Milton Girl In Referendum Taken on Campus

Miss Chrissie J. Anderson.

Miss Chrissie J. Anderson, a school teacher of Springfield, Mo., has started a nation-wide movement to popularize American folk dances in connection with state and patriotic songs. Programs of songs and dances tend to improve rural standards, prevent and cure idleness and generally raise social standards is her opinion.

MILTON, Wis.—Triple honors as the most popular girl in Milton college, the best girl student and the best girl musician were won by Miss Doris Raus, a popular student. The contest, conducted by the Battle Creek Student club of the local institution, A. Gerald Sayre, also of Milton, was selected as the most popular man and the best athlete in college. He is captain of this year's basketball team, as well as a brilliant football and baseball player.

Miss Myrtle Branch, White Cloud, Mich., was declared to be the most beautiful coed, and Charles Sutton, Battle Creek, Mich., the best looking man.

The above and other results of the recent student vote, are announced in College Crumbles, a souvenir booklet, issued by the Battle Creek club. Hymn book racks for the college chapel were purchased by the club with proceeds from the sale of the booklets.

Caroline E. Gallup.

Caroline E. Gallup, the only registered woman pharmacist in Bellingham, Wash., urges women to take up pharmacy as a vocation. It is work for which they are physically fitted, although the hours are rather long, is Miss Gallup's opinion. Steady nerves are a requirement. The work is interesting and so far it is not well filled with women.

Prof. T. J. J. See, Mar. Island, Calif., astronomer and mathematician, claims to have discovered the cause of magnetism and gravity.

Minus his harem and most of his royal honors, Mohammed VI, former sultan of Turkey and caliph of Islam, is now residing at the officers' quarters of Fort Tigne, on the Isle of Malta, a guest of the government of Great Britain. His flight from Constantinople with his ten-year-old son, Ergotrud, was accompanied with the aid of H. M. S. Malaya, when the Kemal forces entered to dethrone him.

The Pacific mail liner "President Taft" carried her most precious cargo recently when she left San Francisco with five pretty brides-to-be on board. All five were on their way to the Orient to marry. Just who the five lucky men are who will be waiting for the liner when she docks they didn't divulge, but the girls are Edna Lee Hind, Marjorie Snow Hopkins, Pauline Biggs, Margaret Meyers and Clarita Nunan.

Mrs. Clara Phillips, the "Tiger-Woman," might have shown a little respect for the feelings of Los Angeles authorities before she took French leave of the more or less comfortable quarters they had provided for her pending her removal to the penitentiary. She might at least have left a farewell note with her destination to calm the ruffled dignity of her former hosts. But she didn't. And as a result Clara vanished and a country-wide search has failed to find a trace of her.

Her escape from jail is said to be the first ever accomplished in the nation's history in such a daring manner by a woman charged with a serious crime. That she risked death to gain her freedom is shown clearly by the photos.

Above, the sawed bars in the cell of the Los Angeles jail through which Mrs. Clara Phillips, the "hammer slayer," fled. Below, dotted lines show route of flight. No. 1 shows cell from which she escaped by climbing over cornice with the aid of a rope ladder. No. 2, Madalynn Obenchain's cell, which she left the evening before a tree woman.

Mrs. John I. Nolan and her small daughter.

Mrs. John I. Nolan, widow of the late Labor-Progressive congressman from California, will seek to fill the place made vacant by his death. She is shown here in a recent photograph with her small, golden-haired daughter.

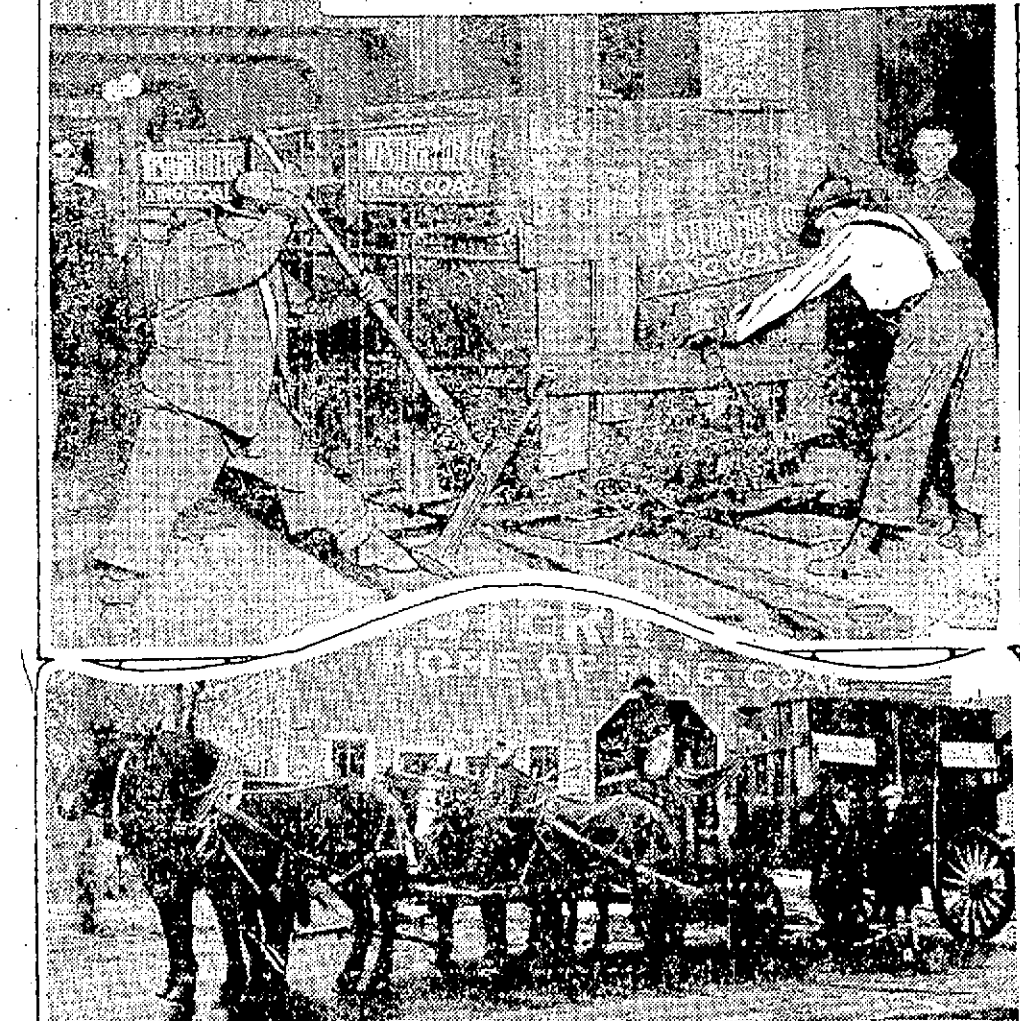

Sir W. Lints Smith.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., of New York, the erstwhile "twenty-five dollar a week reporter," will act as the business and financial agent of the London Times and affiliated papers in America. Sir W. Lints Smith, manager of the English publications, has just returned to London after contracting with Vanderbilt to act as the American representative.

Iowa is sending a real-honest-to-goodness farmer to the U. S. senate. He's Smith Brookhart. Brookhart prides himself on being a practical farmer and is as proud of his prize winning Poland China swine as he is of his recent election to the United States senate. The farmer vote was largely responsible for his election.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa, in his farm togs with his son, Joe, looks over his prize brood of Poland Chinas on his farm near Des Moines.

For Cold Weather Motoring Confidence

The Buick Seven Passenger Touring—$1435

On winter roads, the abundant power and smooth riding of the Buick seven passenger touring car gives a new confidence to cold weather motoring.

Close fitting storm curtains, provided with the special Buick weather strip to seal the joints, and that open with the doors, afford a snug comfort against storm and cold.

The long wheel base and the semi-elliptic springs with a new suspension, insure easy riding, made luxuriously comfortable by the wide deeply upholstered seats. Every convenience for effortless driving is at the driver's hand. Standard appointments include such refinements as sun visor, windshield wiper and rear vision mirror.

The seven passenger touring car maintains, in every particular, the traditional Buick excellence.

The Famous Buick Clutch

A finger's pressure disengages the Buick clutch, yet the clutch is always positive in its action. The clutch in all models has a drop forged hub with a ground-bearing surface.

Hints for the Motorist

Copyright, 1922, by the International Syndicate

Adjustments

IN ADDITION TO LUBRICATION, the replenishment of water and fuel supplies and the care of tires and battery, there are numerous adjustments of the mechanism, which the wear of parts, inevitably renders necessary, some early in a car's history and others only after very extended use. Most of these can be performed by the owner, with ordinary tools and much money can be saved by so doing. Among the adjustments which the thrifty motorist should prepare himself to undertake and for which directions will be or have been given in these columns, are the following: Resetting of the valve mechanism so that the valves may be operated with a minimum of lost motion and noise and still be positively actuated—the so-called tappet adjustment, an attention usually required rather early in the use of a car and most generally when valves are ground. Correcting the gap between the breaker points of the distributor, an operation which, once performed, should not require repetition for a long time. Resetting of the spark plug points—a process required at long, regular intervals during a car's life. Correcting the tension of the radiator fan belt, to give the desired cooling effect. Restoring the tightness of water pump shaft packings to prevent leakage. Correction of the oil pressure, carried in the engine lubrication system, to meet altered conditions brought about by the wear of bearing surfaces. Variation of the mixture furnished by the carburetor, to meet changes in the weather, altitude or fuel quality. The elimination of lost motion at the end connections of the steering drag-link. The removal of end play from the steering wheel shaft. The correction of backlash in the steering device itself. Effecting proper alignment of the front wheels. Doing away with wobbling of the front wheels, by keeping their bearings properly tightened. Correction of end play and consequent rattling in spring bolts. Tightening brake bands in relation to their drums, as their linings wear. Adjusting clutch pedal position, to compensate for clutch facing wear. Removing end play in rear-axle shafts, by tightening their outboard bearings. Compensating for wear of the bevel gears, by a readjustment of the bearings which regulate their mesh. The adjustment of engine main bearings and connecting-rod bearings has purposely been omitted from the above enumeration, as it is not believed that it is advisable for the average motorist to undertake these jobs, on account of lack of practical experience and facilities, although there are many experienced ones who can do this work perfectly well.

WHY ENGINES BACKFIRE

S. L. C. asks: Why does carburetor backfiring occur and is there any carburetor so made as to prevent it?

Answer: A mixture that is very poor in gasoline burns very slowly, so slowly that the flame of combustion may persist in a cylinder, not only throughout the power stroke, but even through the exhaust stroke up to the time when the intake valve opens to take the next charge. When this happens, the intake manifold, filled with combustible charge, is put into direct communication with the cylinder filled with flame and the flame runs back through the intake passages, into the carburetor and burns, so far as we know, may be subject to backfire, whenever it is delivering a very slow burning mixture.

ONLY TWO CYLINDERS FIRE WHEN COLD

W. H. writes: When I start my engine in the morning, it runs for quite a while on two cylinders only, unless I keep the choke partly closed, but after a time it begins to fire on all four. Even after the car has stood idle for an hour or so, two of the cylinders fail to fire until it has run for a half a mile or so, but then it runs perfectly. Can I overcome this irregularity?

Answer: By setting the carburetor for a richer mixture you can make all four cylinders fire with less delay, but the mixture will then be unnecessarily rich, when the engine becomes warm, and you will waste fuel. Condensation in the intake passages is the cause for two cylinders of your engine getting rich enough charges to fire and the other two receiving too lean charges, while the parts are cold. Anything that you can do to apply adequate vaporizing heat to the intake, such as "hot-spotting," will make your engine get into full action more promptly.

blows out through the air inlet, unless the engine is running fast enough so that the speed of the mixture in the intake is greater than the speed at which the flame can travel back toward the carburetor. By providing a fine gauze screen, filling the intake pipe, the flame can be prevented from reaching the carburetor the principle involved being that of the miners' safety lamp, but the use of such a screen tends to choke the intake and is not advisable. Every car

The universal admiration for the Cadillac, like the quality of the car itself, is constantly growing. The fine things that people thought and said about the Cadillac yesterday, they repeat today with even greater enthusiasm. And tomorrow, their praises of the car will be charged with still deeper and stronger intensity.
